

STAMP-N-STORAGE

How I Painted my Units

I LOVE my Stamp-n-Storage units... but I needed them white.

After ruining a few units this is the method that worked for me.

POSITIVELY
• JANE •

Stamp-n-Storage

How I painted my units

This might be hard to describe without pictures...

- I sanded all the sides and the front edges with fine (220 grit) sandpaper
- I used a tack cloth to remove all the dust
- I bought white spray paint. I don't think it matters which brand. I wanted a semi-gloss finish. I used Krylon. Buy 2x as much paint as you need. I think I used 15 cans.
- Paint outside. Lay a plastic drop cloth down. The paper dividers in the units do come out - BUT - do NOT take them completely out when you are painting. They fit so exact that the addition of the paint does not allow them to fit back in. Ask me how I know.....
- I sprayed all the sides first and then the top.
- While I was spraying the top I would pull the dividers out about 4-5", spray both sides of the dividers, and then push them back in. I realized that I was trying to give the 'illusion' of white since I don't see the whole divider (just the ends).
- I did 4 THIN coats with a drying time of 30 minutes between each (quick dry paint).

Stamp-n-Storage

How I painted my units

- Make sure it is not windy the day you are painting. The paint will go everywhere except on your units.
- When I was all finished I sanded the sides and front again with the fine sandpaper.

And viola....all beautiful and white

Labeling the Cardstock -

Underneath each color is a clear 'page'. I cut down 'Translucent Elfa Ventilated Shelf Liners' from the Container Store. I made a clear label with notes the color of the cardstock and the manufacturer in each corner.

Hey there!

It's me, Jane. I am a wife, mom, sister and friend. I am a blogger who has a heart for women in all phases and stages of life. I share all kinds of things - from card making to budgets to organization and God. You can find me in my craft room, on the computer or at the lake just hanging out.

I hope this has been helpful to you!

You can find me...

PositivelyJane.net

Instagram: @positively.jane